HOSPITAL FINANCING DISCUSSED AT MEETING

To Appoint Committee to Plan for Raising Money.

NEED AT LEAST $10,000

At the annual meeting of the Bellefonte Hospital Corporation held in the Court House on last Friday evening the question of necessary financing for the ensuing year was discussed by prominent citizens. The attendance, however, was not half what it should have been when such an important matter to our community was being discussed. George R. Meek, president of the hospital corporation, was in charge of the meeting. H. E. Fenlon, secretary, filed a record of the discussions and business transacted.

One thing definite was agreed upon—that at least $10,000 is required and that it might be well to set a higher goal to provide for needed improvements. President Meek was authorized to appoint a committee to consider the best plan for securing the needed fund.

Col. W. Fred Reynolds read the report of the finance committee and it showed the present indebtedness to be approximately $4,900. The state appropriation was cut from $9,000 to $5,000 and there was a deficit in operating last year of about $700. It is to wipe out the indebtedness, care for the deficit in operating expenses likely to be as much as last year and make up for the cut in the appropriation that the $10,000 is needed.

Discussions were participated in by Judge H. C. Quigley, Col. J. L. Spangler, Dr. Ambrose M. Schmidt, Harry Keller, Esq., John Blanchard, Esq., Roy Wilkinson, L. A. Schaeffer, and others. Trustees for a period of four years were elected as follows: Frank Wion, Calvin Troup, John Blanchard and Charles Schlow.

KU KLUX KLAN CROSS

Fire Company Called for Burning Cross at Bellefonte.

The brilliant fiery cross of the Ku Klux Klan was displayed on the hill west of North Thomas street on Saturday evening about 11 o'clock and the local firemen were called out as a result. When they reached the place, however, the members of the Klan were gone.

Burning of the cross and sounding of the fire bells attracted much attention and hundreds watched the strange sight. There have been various rumors since the cross was burned but we are unofficially informed that several crosses have been burned in this vicinity the past few weeks and that part of the Klan ceremony is to burn the cross at the close of a meeting.

Cars Damaged in Collision.

Two cars, a Buick and a Chevrolet, were damaged in a collision at the foot of the mountain in Centre Hall borough on Sunday toward evening. The Buick was driven by B. F. Corl, of State College, and the Chevrolet by Jasper Wagner, of Spring Mills. It is said that the Buick was being driven past another car and up the mountain when the Chevrolet approached at a speed beyond control. It was found that the Buick could not be started when an effort was made to tow it to Bellefonte, where it is at the Deitrick and Dunlop garage for repairs. It was therefore, necessary to return to town and get a mechanic, Bud Snyder being taken to the scene. Mr. Snyder removed the gears, which in some manner had become locked by the impact, so that the car could be towed to the garage. The Chevrolet was also considerably damaged but none of the occupants of either car were injured.

Ford Coupe Driven Into Train.

A Ford coupe, occupied by two men said to be from Newberry and enroute to the races at the new Altoona speedway met with a mishap at Milesburg on Sunday evening when the driver ran the car into two "blind" coaches at the rear of the evening passenger train as the latter was moving slowly over the crossing east of the station. There were no lights in the last two coaches of the train and this, the driver said, caused him not to see them. The coupe was put out of commission but the men got passage on the train and continued to Altoona.

Lad Painfully Injured

Fred Kurtz, 13 year old, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. R. Kurtz, of Bellefonte, was very painfully injured on Monday when he was thrown after stepping from the running board of an automobile. The lad's head struck the street and he was dazed. It is not thought, however that his injuries will prove serious.

MAKING GOOD IN SOUTH

Well Known Bellefonte Boy in Auto Business.

Jacob Levi, a son of Mrs. M. C. Levi, of Bellefonte, and educated in the local schools, has been making a remarkable success in Birmingham, Alabama, being associated with a Mr. Dearing in the automobile accessories business. Both have added Bill as their first name and call their place of business Bill's Auto Accessories Shop. Mr. Levi has been located in New York city for a number of years, leaving the metropolitan city about six months ago. The Age-Herald newspaper of Birmingham gives the following account which will be interesting to our readers:

"Here are two well known Bills—Bill Levi and Bill Dearing are perhaps two of the best known Bills in Birmingham, at least they have quickly become mighty well known to Birmingham motorists, and that includes almost everybody. Operating Bill's accessory shop at 421 Twentieth street, these two young men have achieved a remarkable success in a short time.

"Opening with a stock amounting in value to $30 000 and within six months init to nearly $85 000, is a record just established in Birmingham by the firm known to Birmingham's automotive world as Bill's Auto Accessory Shop.

"The firm was formally launched into business on Feb. 26, making it just six months old today. During that time, under the direction of the two Bills, Bill Levi and Bill Dearing, from whom it gets its name, the concern has enjoyed a phenominal growth. It has already taken first rank among accessory stores in the south by carrying the largest stock in Alabama.

"In order to show their appreciation to the public for the liberal response that has made their success and rapid progress possible, the two Bills announce that starting Monday they will conduct an appreciation sale, a sale of accessories which they promise will be more profitable to those who participate. For this event the large force at Bills has been kept busy for several days getting up stock and offerings. All is now nearly arranged and every item marked in plain figures."

MOTORCYCLIST HURT

Peter Peschonko May Lose Leg as Result of Accident

When his motor cycle struck a car a slightly sideswiping blow as they passed on the road near Port Matilda on Friday evening, Peter Peschonko, of near Philipsburg, was thrown off and his right leg so seriously crushed that it may be necessary to amputate it.

The injured man is about 18 years of age. He lost control of the machine when it struck the car. Several members of the Commercial Travelers, on their way to the outing at Gum Stump, stopped and aided the motorists who had been helping the young man as much as possible. The Cottage State hospital at Philipsburg was informed and the ambulance brought to the scene, taking him to the hospital.

A Way to Aid the Hospital.

George L. Stevenson, of Waddle, who delivers milk daily from farms between that place and Bellefonte, has volunteered to haul, free of charge, to the Bellefonte hospital donations of vegetables, etc. It occurred to him that frequently persons have surplus quantities of vegetables and fruits on hand which they would be glad to donate to the hospital, but who have no facilities for delivery. This prompted him to volunteer to haul all such donations, without any charge, when he makes his daily trip with milk to Bellefonte. Many persons in the Buffalo Run valley will no doubt be glad to take advantage of this opportunity to help the hospital by handing their donations to Mr. Stevenson. The hospital is in greater need of assistance these days than ever before and every little gift, no matter how small, will help.

Injured by Auto

Henry Bathurst, more familiarly known as "Patsy," of Bellefonte, was painfully but not seriously injured when struck by an automobile while on Water street near the Island on Saturday evening. No bones were broken but Mr. Bathurst was pretty well bandaged when he took his place at the "hot-dog" stand at the Otterbein Brotherhood festival a short time later.

Two Fords Damaged

Two Ford coupes were damaged on Friday at the new bridge at Clintondale when they collided head-on. One was from the Beatty garage and was driven by Charles Lindsay, of Pittsburgh. The other car was from Williamsport. The drivers escaped injury but the front part of both cars was considerably damaged.

PENN'S VALLEY CAR OVER MOUNTAIN SIDE

Four Occupants in Exciting Ride Escape Injury.

CAR SLIGHTLY DAMAGED

One of those rare accidents when it seems that only a kind Providence keeps away the Angel of Death occurred on Monday evening on the Nittany mountain road near Centre Hall when the Overland sedan of Stewart Hosterman, of near Coburn, went crashing over the mountain side for a distance of about 50 feet. The occupants of the car were not injured except for a few slight bruises and the sedan was only slightly damaged.

Mr. Hosterman lost control when the car skidded while going down the steep Centre Hall side of the mountain. He was unable to regain control and the sedan crashed through the guard posts turned over several times and lodged against a tree.

Mr. Hosterman and his party had been to Altoona for the races. The car was pulled to the road on Tuesday morning, which was a difficult job, and towed to the Boozer garage in Centre Hall for repairs.

TERRIFIC EXPLOSION

Workman Was Cutting Gasoline Tank With Acetylene Torch.

One of the many jobs which George (Wally) Keeler fills with apparent satisfaction at the Nathan Ichkowitz coal and junk yard near the Pennsy passenger station is to cut apart old automobiles—the good parts to be salvaged and the balance disposed of as junk. Part of Nathan's plan is to make use of everything that can be sold and it seems to work very successfully as he has been gradually improving his property until he has a splendid place to handle coal and junk, as well as building material which he has added recently.

It was while tearing down an old car on Saturday morning that the vicinity was rocked by a terrific explosion. As Keeler applyed the torch to the gasoline tank, it let go. Such explosions are unusual in that part of town and it occurred just a short time after 9 o'clock while several scores of passengers were waiting for the morning train. Naturally it attracted much attention.

Those who ventured near the car were somewhat surprised to find that Keeler was only dazed and not at all hurt by the explosion. An after-thought showed that the tank had simply had one end partly blown away but no part of it had been thrown. In a few minutes Keeler was back at work on the car.

Discussed Transportation.

In an address on "Agriculture and Transportation," at the grangers picnic at Centre Hall, J. K. Johnston, superintendent of the Tyrone division, Penns. Railroad Co., said that six causes make a present reduction in freight rates impossible. These causes, he said, are labor's demand for increased wages; present low return of investment in railway securities; excessive taxation of railways; the 5¾% railway guarantee, based on the valuation act; lack of railway credit; proposed destructive railway legislation.

Small Crowd at Picnic.

The attendance at the American Legion picnic at Hecla Park on Labor Day was disappointing to the ex-service men. The post cleared about $300, however, and there was considerable satisfaction in this. It seems there were many persons interested in seeing the races at the new Altoona speedway, while a large number went to Snow Shoe park and others visited at the Grange picnic.

Advertising Pays

At their festival on the Island on Saturday evening the Otterbein Brotherhood of the United Brethren church cleared about $45. The men demonstrated that it pays well to advertise. With an evening that was generally conceded not so nice the festival held two weeks before and was well advertised, brought a larger crowd and netted about $70 above all expenses.

Car Wrecked.

A party of motorists from Milton wrecked their touring car when it upset on Sunday on the state road between Old Fort hotel and Spring Mills. One man, it is understood, had his ankle sprained, the most serious injury to befall any of the party.

NEW WORLD RECORD AT ALTOONA SPEEDWAY

Eddie Hearne Winner; Howard Wilcox Instantly Killed

SPEED AVERAGE 111.5

With an average speed of 111.5 miles per hour, Eddie Hearne won double honors at the 200 mile classic auto racing event at the opening of the new Altoona speedway on Tuesday afternoon, winning the race and first prize money—$7,000—in 1 hour, 47 minutes, 37.35 seconds, and making an average of five miles better than the former record which he had scored on July 4, 1923, at Kansas City.

Howard Wilcox, a veteran racer who had been in the game for fourteen years, was instantly killed when his car turned turtle at a curve in the 118th lap of the race. His neck was broken, his chest crushed and his limbs fractured in many places. Stories told by drivers near the scene vary. Lewis, who passed as the crash came and a cloud of dust spelled horror to the thousands of witnesses, said, "In a fleeting glimpse it looked as though he got too low on the curve and his left wheels got off the planking. His swerve to regain the ribbon caused his car to skid about and turn turtle."

Bennie Hill thinks he saw Wilcox travel high on the bowl, then a wheel collapse and the machine turn. Others think the steering wheel broke.

Wilcox was 35 years old. His wife died of tuberculosis five years ago. He seemed to have a premonition of his death and had told some of his pals that he must prepare for his two small children. He was generally fond of joking. Besides his children, a brother, 18, and his mother survive.

No one placed for tenth prize and Wilcox was driving a Daesenberg car in second place when the accident occurred, so that a movement to give the tenth place prize money, a total of about $800, to his orphaned children, met with favor.

Bellefonte and Centre county were well represented in the big crowd that gathered on Labor Day to witness the auto race classic. Unfortunately, rain marred the day and the event was postponed until Tuesday. Some of those who went to the races brought back a report that one wide awake observer had previously visited a farmer and arranged for use of a field near the speedway, paying $200 for the right. As the field was convenient, it is said he parked 3,500 cars and received $1 00 for each car.

BELLEFONTE WINS

Centre County League Season Officially Closed.

Bellefonte won first place among the four teams—Bellefonte, State College, Centre Hall and Millheim—composing the Centre County Baseball League, by a close margin when Centre Hall was defeated at Hecla Park on Labor Day, the score being 5—1. State College maintained their close place at second by defeating Millheim 8—3.

STANDING OF THE TEAMS.

	Won	Lost	P. C
Bellefonte	18	9	667
State College	17	9	654
Centre Hall	13	13	500
Millheim	6	23	207

These games close the season officially and as scheduled but each team was supposed to play 30 games and they are several games short of this goal. The League association has been considering extending the playing season and arranging for games so that each team plays the allotted 30 games but nothing definite has been given out.

Sloop—Dorworth.

The wedding of Professor Arthur H. Sloop and Miss Elizabeth H. Dorworth was solemnized at 7 o'clock last Thursday evening at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Edwin S. Dorworth, on East High Street. Rev. Thomas W. Young, of the Presbyterian church, officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Chas. E. Dorworth. Another brother, William J. Dorworth, of Philadelphia, was the groom's attendant. Mary Elizabeth Sloop, a daughter of the groom, played the wedding march. The event was informal, those present being the immediate families of the bride and groom and a few nearby neighbors. Professor Sloop is supervising principal of the Bellefonte public schools. His bride was a teacher in the primary grade schools here for a number of years. They are at home at the Sloop residence on East Curtin Street.

BOAL TROOP REUNION

Ex-Service Men Had Annual Gathering During Weekend.

The annual reunion of the Boal Troop took place on Saturday and Sunday at their old camp at Boalsburg. About 50 of the old troopers appeared on the scene. Delicious meals were served by manager George Furgeson, of the Boalsburg tavern.

On Saturday night there was a dance, with a number of guests, who added to the gayety. The achievements of the troop in its heroic career were talked over at length by the comrades.

It will be remembered that it was this troop which, unsupported at Apremont, repulsed and inflicted terrible losses on three waves of German picked infantry. This repulse, according to the accounts of prisoners, practically broke up an entire German shock division. Boal Troop also distinguished itself by efficiency on the border in 1916-19 and had the highest rating in the recent tour of duty in the coal fields. All the former commanding officers of the troop were present with the exception Captain Pierre de La-Garde Boal, who is now in charge of the U. S. legation at Warsaw, Poland. The commanding officer of the present troop was also the guest of the veterans

Colonel Leitzell, in the absence of President Barrett, called the meeting of the veteran troop and officers were elected for the ensuing year as follows: Chas. Reed, Milroy, Pres.; Walter L. Poorman, Boalsburg, Vice-Pres; Clair Lyons, Bellefonte, Secy. and Treas. The next year's reunion is scheduled for the second Saturday and Sunday in August at Boalsburg.

INITIATED NEW MEMBERS

Ceremony Held by Penn Chapter of DeMolay.

At the ceremonial held in the opera house in Bellefonte on Tuesday evening, 27 news members were taken into the DeMolay chapter.

The ceremony was preceded by a street parade of the DeMolay boys, headed by the new band under leadership of Frank Wetzler, of Milesburg, followed by the members with their purple and gold caps and by the candidates.

The initiatory and DeMolay degrees were conferred in full ceremonial fashion in a very creditable manner by officers of the chapter. Many Masons from various parts of the county were in attendance, the candidates coming from all over Centre County. One of the features was the presentation of a beautiful United States silk flag by County Treasurer L. Frank Mayes, of Lemont. Prof. Eugene Weik, of State College, made the presentation address and Wilson I. Fleming, chairman of the board of advisors of the Penn Centre Chapter, representing Constans commandery, No. 33 K. T., responded.

The membership of the DeMolay local chapter is now 116—a very healthy growth in 3 months. The big aim now, for which the members and their friends are making every effort, is to secure uniforms for the band of which they feel justly proud. Meetings are held every second and fourth Tuesdays in the Bush Arcade.

Motor Club visited Here.

The Blair County Motor club paid Centre County towns a visit on Sunday on their scheduled trip. A number of Blair County folks took advantage of the opportunity to motor over the splendid roads of this section and to view the pretty landscape scenes. The trip embraced a tour of 151 miles. The route followed was from Altoona to Bellwood, 7 miles; Tyrone, 7 miles; Vail, 3 miles; Sandy Ridge, 7 miles; Powelton, 2 miles; Osceola, 3 miles; Philipsburg, 6 miles; Allport, 4 miles; Kylertown, 3 miles; Drifting, 5 miles; Moshannon, 7 miles, Snow Shoe, 4 miles; Runville, 12 miles; Wingate, 3 miles; Bellefonte, 5 miles; Pleasant Gap, 4 miles; Lemont, 7 miles; State College, 3 miles; Pine Grove Mills, 4 miles; Seven Stars, 7 miles; Spruce Creek, 7 miles; Water Street, 3 miles; Williamsburg, 11 miles; Hollidaysburg, 15 miles; Altoona, 7 miles.

"Bringing Up Father."

The kind of fun that is sure to find acclaim with the most exacting patron of the theatre is promised in the new "Bringing Up Father" play which is to be the opening attraction at the Opera House, Thursday Sept. 13. The play, which is based on the popular comics of George McManus, is entitled "Bringing Up Father on Broadway." It is the work of John P. Mulgrew, a well-known writer for the stage. All the beloved characters of the famous cartoons will appear—Jiggs Mahoney, Maggie, Kitty and Dinty Moore. New and catchy music, along with a beauty chorus of twenty sprightly and beautiful young women are a few of the features.

GRANGE PICNIC MARRED BY CONTINUOUS RAIN

Campers Have Discouraging Time on Water Soaked Park

WOMAN WAS TAKEN ILL

Rain spoiled the 50th anniversary of the Grange Fair and Encampment at the Grange park in Centre Hall, the continuous rains soaking the grounds and making it unpleasant for the campers, at the same time causing hundreds to change their plans and remain at home during the last few days. In view of the arrangements made for entertaining record crowds yesterday and today, the rains brought bitter disappointments.

Mrs. Collins Baumgardner, of Pleasant Gap, who was camping for the week with her husband and party, suffered a stroke of apoplexy on Tuesday and was brought to her home in a critical condition. Late reports say that she improved slightly on Tuesday evening and yesterday.

Mr. Baumgardner is road supervisor in Spring township. The family is well known in that community. Mrs. Baumgardner is about 58 years old and the stroke was very unexpected. She formerly resided in the vicinity of State College, her maiden name being Reish, the family being well known in that section.

CAR UPSET ON TURN

Miss Winifred Hartman, of Lock Haven, Painfully Injured.

When a large touring car occupied by several couples of young folks from Lock Haven rounded a sharp turn in the state road by the Charles Strouse farm, near State College, Miss Winifred Hartman was very painfully injured and was given first aid treatment by Dr. William Glenn, of State College, and then taken to the Lock Haven hospital, where she is a patient. Miss Hartman had severe lacerations, a fracture of the nose and her back was hurt.

The car was being driven homeward on Monday evening after the group had gone to Altoona to witness the races at the Altoona speedway. Apparently the driver was not familiar with the road and was driving too fast as he approached the curve. All the young folks were caught under the car but only Miss Hartman was seriously injured, it was discovered, when passing motorists aided in lifting the car and getting the occupants free. One of the young men, it is said, was slightly injured.

MYERS UNDER HEAVY BAIL

Wrestler Charged With Aggravated Assault and Battery.

"Gander" Myers, well known young man of Bellefonte who has gained quite a reputation as a wrestler, seems equally as effective with his fists but the latter have caused him a lot of trouble as well as notoriety. Charged with aggravated assault and battery, as the result of an alleged quarrel with Robert Thompson, on Saturday, Myers was placed under bail of $2,000, which he furnished.

A hearing was scheduled for Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the office of Justice Kline Woodring but the attorneys for both sides asked that it be continued, pending an attempt to settle the matter. The battered young man is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Thompson, of Bellefonte, and his father made the information against Myers.

Jack Furst Victim of Shot Gun.

Jack Furst, 18, a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hogan Furst, well known residents of Lock Haven, was very seriously wounded when a shot gun was discharged by accident at a camp of young men at Cross Fork on Friday afternoon. Furst was holding the gun, it is averred, when it discharged, the shot striking the side of a Ford car and glancing back. Two shots penetrated his left eye ball, and the flesh around his right eye was badly lacerated. The main part of the shot tore a large hole in the car. It is feared Furst may lose sight of his left eye.

Fell on Cellar Steps.

Mrs. Charles Dann, of Bellefonte, wife of the well-known yard foreman of the Bellefonte Lumber Co., fell on the cellar steps at the store on Tuesday evening and was very painfully injured. She suffered a severe gash, in the back of her head, her back was hurt and her nose badly bruised.

Wage Slave.

The wife of a certain prominent member of the Los Angeles Athletic club button-holed her husband the other day with tears in her eyes. "Darling," she murmured, "every day this week I've been looking in the window of a store near the club where there's a perfect dream of a hat, but the price was so tremendous—"

"Perhaps," began the fond husband.

"Yes, dear. But there isn't any perhaps. I paid the cook this noon, and what do you think? she marched right down and bought herself that very hat!"

Birds on Abandoned Farms.

Naturalists have noticed that the abandoned farms offer great opportunity for the study of bird life, and the birds seem to frequent these localities for some reason. Edmund J. Sawyer of Syracuse, N. Y., who has commented on this fact in articles for various publications, says that while the birds to be found at these places are mostly of the commoner varieties, for purposes of close observation the abandoned farms offer great advantages because of the numbers to be encountered. Within 300 feet of one of these houses he found nests with eggs and young of eleven species.

LEGION WARNING OF FAKES

Alleged Veterans' Publications Used to Appeal to Sympathy of Patriotic Citizens.

The sale of fake "veteran" magazines and publications has cost the public more than $5,000,000 within a period of fourteen months, according to information received by the American Legion which has issued a warning against the operations of promoters of the spurious publications.

Publishers often use the name "veteran" to persuade the public that former service men get part of the proceeds of sales. Their salesmen do not hesitate to use the disabled and wounded plea. Investigations by the Legion and other Veterans' organizations and the Department of Justice have disclosed that entire proceeds of publications go into the pockets of persons who did not serve in the war, and who capitalize the patriotism of the American public and the reputation of World war fighters to enrich themselves.

Salesmen often peddle the publications with the plea of "help ex-soldiers"; "proceeds help disabled men"; "wounded myself in France, and cannot get a job." In some cases it was found to be the "game" for publishers to disown agents soliciting advance subscriptions. Other agents were found to have bought and worn "wound buttons" from private concerns. Many peddlers who have been arrested admitted that they were not former service men. By using the "help-the-boys-who-fought-for-you" plea, they have disposed of magazines, some at 25 cents a copy, their profit ranging from 17 to 19 cents.

In a number of cases salesmen have represented their publications as indorsed by the American Legion, which is untrue.

American Legion posts in all sections of the country are urged to give publicity to these fakes in order to protect patriotic citizens in their communities.

TO BE CLOSER CO-OPERATION

Veterans of World War and British Legion Now Are "Comrades in Peace."

Closer co-operation between veterans of the World war of the United States and Great Britain is indicated by the fact that the American Legion was represented at the annual convention of the British Legion and at the biennial meeting of the British Empire Service League.

Replying to a message sent by Alvin Owsley, American Legion national commander, to the British Legion, Sir Douglas Haig, head of the British organization, said:

"It seemed to me that your splendid words found an echo in the hearts of everyone present. To your wish, 'Let us be comrades in peace,' I hasten to assure you that that is the sincere wish of every member of the British Legion. The aims of our respective Legions seem to be identical for all practical purposes and I hope that by some means we English-speaking ex-service men may become more closely affiliated. Please convey to your colleagues of the American Legion the heartfelt thanks of the British Legion for your assurance of fellowship, which we cordially reciprocate."

Past National Commanders Hanford MacNider of Mason City, Ia., and Milton J. Foreman of Chicago represented the Legion at the British convention.

AIDS IN MEMORIAL PROJECTS

Idaho Law Provides for Recognition of Those Who Gave Lives in World Conflict.

State aid in memorial construction projects is provided by Idaho, by the terms of a law recently enacted by the legislature of that state. Under the law a memorial commission is authorized in each county, to be composed of the commander of the American Legion post, heads of other "established and recognized" war veterans' organizations and the county commissioners. Each county commission is empowered to decide on a memorial to honor the World war dead. When the county appropriates $1,000 and acquires a site for a memorial, the state will provide an equal sum.

County recorders are directed to record all discharge certificates of World war service men on application, and to make certified copies of the record when requested. A fee of 25 cents is authorized for making the record or furnishing a certified copy.

Modern Hospital Opened.

A Soldiers' Memorial hospital for the care of men disabled in the World war has been opened near Muskogee, Okla. The hospital was built by the soldiers' relief commission created by the Oklahoma legislature on request of the American Legion. The institution has been declared by veterans' bureau officials to be one of the most modern in the country.

LEADER OF OVERSEAS BODY

Miss Louise Wells of Chicago Is Re-Elected President of Women's Service League.

Miss Louise Wells of Chicago has been re-elected president of the Women's Overseas Service league, known as the little sister of the American Legion because many Legion women are also members of the league, making for closer co-operation between the two organizations.

Members of the league were the Army and Red Cross nurses, Salvation Army lassies, the "Y" girls, signal corps girls, canteeners, librarians and entertainers who served America's fighting men in France. Many were gassed and wounded and more than 150 of them died of such plagues as trench fever and influenza. A few were killed in action.

Miss Wells entered the service from Los Angeles. She is the daughter of Arthur G. Wells, vice president of the Santa Fe railroad. After serving at Miss Louise Wells.

Camp Upton, she went overseas as a canteen worker. At Glenoble, at Allevard-Les-Bains and at Lyon, she served as a canteen worker and with the entertainment forces. She organized the Los Angeles unit of the league, and later was president of the Chicago unit.

Speaking at a recent convention of the league, Brig. Gen. Charles D. Dawes said:

"You never looked so good to me as you did in your somber uniforms and hats, wading through the mud and mire, tramping through the rain, serving hot chocolate for hours at a time, in that country which, before we went over, we called 'sunny France.'"

Respects of the American Legion were paid to the overseas women by Past National Commander John G. Emery of Grand Rapids, Mich.

TO HONOR WORLD WAR HERO

Arkansas Legion Members Plan Fitting Tributes to Ex-Service Man in Unmarked Grave.

Arkansas members of the American Legion are assisting in plans for the Herman Davis Memorial Foundation in honor of Herman Davis, Arkansas' outstanding hero of the World war, who died in January from the effects of gas and is buried in an unmarked grave at Manila, Ark.

Plans of the foundation call for the erection of a suitable monument to his memory at Manila, and a similar monument on the lawn of the State War Memorial building at Little Rock. In addition, a scholarship will be endowed at the University of Arkansas, to be known as the Herman Davis scholarship.

A highway leading through the northern part of Mississippi county, through Manila and past the burial place of the young hero will be known as the Herman Davis Memorial highway.

Placed fourth on the list of 100 heroes of the war by General Pershing, Davis was always modest and reticent. He did not seek to capitalize his fame, but when the war was over returned to his native soil and again took up the ways of the simple life which he always had led.

SAYS LEGION BENEFITS TOWN

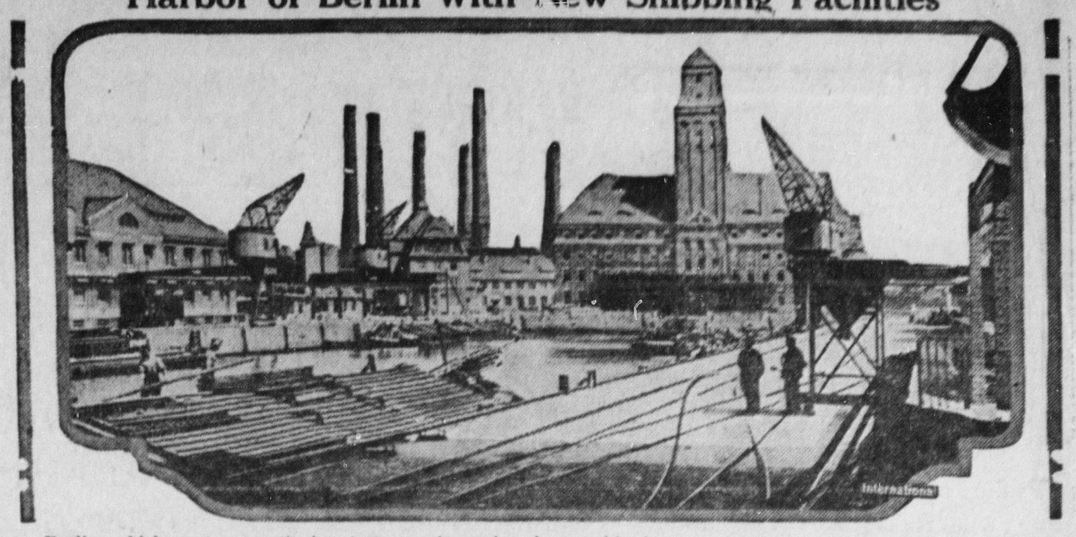
Disabled Veteran Declares Organization Demands Justice for Every Ex-Service Man.

"We knew it would be a benefit to the town to get a post of the American Legion here. The Legion deserves all the assistance that every ex-service man can give it, for I, as a disabled man, know that through that organization a disabled man can get justice."

This was the declaration of Frederick Graham, a veteran of the World war and of the Spanish-American war, who now resides in Edmonds, Wash. The town has no post of the American Lgeion, owing to a small number of ex-service men, and Graham has been suggested as one to start such a movement among the former soldiers in the community.

Graham wrote national headquarters of the Legion that he was unable to take up the organization work on account of his physical condition. He said that he was being cared for by the veterans' bureau, after his case had been presented by American Legion officials.

Harbor of Berlin With New Shipping Facilities



Berlin, which up to recently has been poorly equipped as a shipping port, is now so well equipped with the latest devices in labor saving and harbor facilities that it is believed in Germany to be only a question of time when Berlin will take rank as one of Europe's leading seaports. Two piers of 7,500 feet each can accommodate about 30 barges; the storehouses built on the piers have a capacity of 280,000 tons; the granaries have a capacity of 600,000 hundred weights.

Port of Lost Planes Holds Many Secrets

Sky-Like Sea Now and Then Betrays Men Who Put Their Faith in It.

New York.—For centuries the sea has given us thrilling tales of adventure, yielding romance and treasure, the while it has taken its annual toll in men and ships. Throughout the long years, though science has done much to lessen the dangers of ocean travel, we still hear of missing ships.

Today there is another element being conquered—the air. Like the sea, the air has now and again betrayed the men who put their faith in it. Some have had only adventure, others sheer tragedy, and others have left us only mysteries.

Men have been known to go up into the clouds without being heard from again. One hears the stories wherever flying men gather.

When Col. Francis Marshall and Lieut. Charles Weber of the army air service disappeared last December while flying between San Diego, Calif., and an army post in Arizona, their brother officers kept up the search for two months. It was reported that their plane had been sighted off the course and evidently bound for Mexico; and the supposition is that failing again to regain their course they were forced to land in unfriendly country. The Mexican government conducted an investigation and found no trace of them or their plane among the semi-outlawed bands near the border. This is one of the rare instances where experienced pilots have lost their way over a familiar course. Possibly fog or a severe storm negatived the value of their compass.

Lost in Arctic.

For a number of aerial voyagers, however, their supreme adventure has been the beginning and the end. Of such was the disappearance of Capt. Mansell R. James, British ace, who on May 29, 1919, left Lee, Mass., continuing a flight from Boston and Atlantic City. No trace of him has been discovered, though the air forces of three governments, British, Canadian and American, sought for many months.

Unlike the flight of James, who was flying over land and with distinct landmarks to guide him throughout the course, was the polar expedition of Prof. S. A. Andree, the Swedish scientist, and his companions, Knut Fraenkel and Nils Strindberg, the last a cousin of the dramatist. Theirs was the first aerial disappearance of record, and one of the most striking.

They set out in a free balloon on a July afternoon in 1897 with the object of flying across the North Pole from Spitzbergen. Their craft was the largest of its kind. It measured 97 feet from the top of the gas bag to the floor of the wicker car, which was efficiently equipped for the voyage—food for 30 days, a lifeboat, dog sled, snowshoes, dog harness, picks and shovels. Andree believed, as did scores of his colleagues who gathered to see the start, that swift trade winds blew from Spitzbergen straight across the pole.

Two days after the outfit had disappeared in a northerly direction a message arrived by carrier pigeons taken to keep the world informed of Andree's progress. It read: "July 13, 12:30 p. m. 82.2 degrees north latitude, 15.5 degrees east longitude. Good progress toward the north. All well on board. This message the third by carrier pigeon. Andree."

It was also the last. It was generally believed the party had perished on top of one of the North Greenland glaciers.

Two Navy Balloons Lost.

The Andree venture was almost paralleled by the flight of the United States navy dirigible C-5 in May, 1919. The blimp, after making a record hop from Montauk Point, L. I., to St. John's Newfoundland, stood ready to jump out over the Atlantic and win the trans-ocean race against a field of the latest American and British planes. There being no mooring mast nor shed to house the C-5, it was parked in an open field at St. Johns, and the crew went aboard a navy boat to rest after their 1,000-mile flight from the United States. Another officer, Lieut. Charles G. Little, of Chicago, on duty with the American craft in the harbor, was assigned as watch officer aboard the airship, and he climbed into the car underneath the great bag. Suddenly a sharp blast of wind struck the blimp, tearing it away from the cables that had held it. Little jumped up and pulled the rip cord, which should have released the gas and brought the ship down. But the cord broke. The officer, with excellent judgment, leaped to the ground from a height of 30 feet. The C-5 was last seen headed for the North Pole without a crew. She has not yet been reported.

Then there was a navy balloon which two years ago drifted out to sea from Pensacola, Fla., carrying a full complement of officers and men. They have not been seen.

During the London-Australia flight three years ago Captain Howells and Henry Fraser in the Martinsyde entry for the $50,000 prize flew safely from London to Taranto, Italy. On the morning, of December 9 they took off over the Mediterranean with the African coast as their objective. For days nothing was heard of them. One day the British consul at Corfu received word that a plane had been seen drifting off shore.

The Fate of Hamel.

The next day they rowed out to the plane, now only a mass of wreckage almost submerged in the waves. They found no one on board. Later the body of Captain Howells was washed ashore. He was buried at the base of the mountain which overlooks St. George's bay.

Every aviator remembers Gustav Hamel, considered by many to have been the greatest of the English pilots. Hamel had been flying since 1911. Before the war he was one of the most popular men in the British empire. On the morning of May 23, 1914, Hamel left Paris in a racing plane bound for England. He reached Le Cretoy on the coast 45 minutes later and thence he went to Hardelot and landed on the sands. Starting again after luncheon, he passed over Boulogne and observers saw his machine pointed toward Cape Gris Nez. Then he vanished forever.

The war came soon afterward and, owing to the spy fever which afflicted all belligerent nations, stories floated about England which made of Hamel a paid agent of the kaiser. It was recalled that Hamel was born "somewhere in Germany." Months later a patrol boat picked up a piece of a wing strut which might have been on the plane. But it was not proved. Later on a pair of goggles was found.

With the growing popularity of the German aviator, Immelman, it was conjectured here and there that Immelman was really Hamel, who had changed his name along with his allegiance. The rumors were little credited in official circles. Members of Hamel's family were heartbroken and published letters broadcast to show that Hamel had been born in Hamburg and at the time of his birth the city was an independent town, that his father had been a native Englishman, and furthermore that the aviator's body had really been found on July 1, 1914, by the skipper of the fishing smack St. Helene, floating in the sea some ten miles off Point Alprecht. The family insisted that an inflated bicycle tire found on the body had furnished conclusive proof, because Morane, for whom Hamel was flying, had insisted on his wearing it. The body had been buried at sea. The courts accepted the evidence and granted the family letters of administration.

There is another story, not of common knowledge. Recently a former officer in the Royal air force gave what he insisted is the true version. It is set down here for what it is worth.

A Spy Story.

In 1917 appeared at the British training field at Croydon, now London's principal airport, a handsome young British officer wearing four war medals. He presented papers authorizing the commanding officer to accept him as a flying cadet, stating that he had been transferred from the land forces. Captain B— soon became one of the most proficient pilots in the service. The new pilot had one peculiar habit. Whenever he went up for flight he carried a small traveling bag, explaining that he had an instinctive dislike for sleeping without his own pajamas; and that in the event of a forced landing compelling him to stop in a distant hamlet over night he desired his own soap and toilet articles.

One day he appeared on the field prepared for a scheduled altitude flight. He wore his best uniform and carried the bag. He was last seen at an altitude of 16,000 feet flying toward the coast.

Months passed, and years. Hostilities ceased.

One day British representatives in Holland were informed that the remains of an English plane still lay where it had landed safely, and then had been destroyed by its own pilot, who had alighted close to the German border and had then escaped across the frontier. The serial number on the wreckage was ample evidence that it was the plane in which the missing pilot had ascended. It then developed that coincident with his disappearance there were missed plans and descriptions of at least nine of the latest types of fighting planes then being developed in the United Kingdom.

Of late flying has become as commonplace as other means of transport, that is, for the persons engaged in it. But it was only two years ago that Lieut. Alexander Pierson, en route from El Paso, Texas, to Florida, was lost in Mexico for 11 days. He rode up out of the southern republic on a mule. His plane lay at the bottom of a deep canyon into which he had glided when his motor stalled.

His experience was relatively peaceful, however, to that of Lieut. Ross M. Hardendorf, one of the pilots with the Atlantic fleet, whose motor stalled 10,000 feet over the sea off the west coast of Cuba in May, 1920. Hardendorf's plane turned upside down when he struck the water. He climbed on top of it and was arranging his handkerchief on a wing strut as a distress signal when he was rudely interrupted by a school of man-eating tiger sharks. They charged him in droves, singly and in pairs. Hardendorf spent all afternoon fighting them off. A seaplane passed, but did not stop, the pilot evidently not seeing the tiny object below. Night fell and Hardendorf was confronted with the possibility of tearing his plane to pieces, because he was forced to use wooden braces, struts and wing ribs as weapons.

One after another he broke the light bits of wood across the noses of the sharks. He stood on his overturned plane throughout the night. Morning brought the sun and a terrible thirst, thirst such as only shipwrecked sailors with salt spray flecking the lips can know. After hours of labor the aviator fashioned a makeshift evaporator from tubes and piping secured from the machine. With this he got about a quart of brackish water. Late that second afternoon another seaplane passed overhead and this time circled and dropped down alongside the wreck. Hardendorf collapsed as he was lifted aboard. He spent two weeks in the hospital. At that his luck was better than that of the three British seaplanes which disappeared off the Irish coast in February of that year. They were not found.

Details of hardship and adventure survive only with the victors in the struggle with the elements. Near Tabora, in that part of the Dark Continent formerly paying tribute to the Kaiser under the name of German East Africa, are scattered parts of the largest of the British airplanes which in February, 1920, set out on the eventful flight from Cairo to Cape Town. All of the planes came to grief in one way or another.

Cat in California Fights Own Image

Huntington Park, Calif., has a cat that fights its own reflection.

The cat lives in a grocery store. It hops up on the counter, looks into a mirror, and sees its own image. Then the fun begins.

Pussy dashes against the mirror, spits and claws, but the other "cat" does the same. After tiring itself out, the animal will seek a corner and forget the one-cat battle for a while.

Knitted Togs for Kiddies;

School Hats Are Jaunty

SINCE "comfort first" is baby's plea, small wonder is it that the softest and daintiest of knitted garments occupy the place of honor in childhood's realm. It is generally conceded that for baby's tender skin there is nothing so "comfy" as knitted wool, lacking, as it does, the irritating qualities of the harder woven fabrics. Then, too, with knitted art responding so generously to childhood's needs, one readily appreciates why doting mothers acquired the habit of planning their little one's outfits along the lines of the myriads of pretty things created from supple yarns and zephyrs.

Knitted Things for Children.

For babies' wear, white naturally holds sway with pink or blue trimmings. An attractive yoke distinguished from the ordinary, the little crochet sacque here pictured and the fact that it is a dainty pastel shade with lower ripple flare in pure white, adds to its loveliness. Contrary to expectation this adorable little garment fastens in the back with two pearl buttons, while a little pink (or blue if occasion demands) bow adorns the front. The cap is crocheted in astrakhan stitch and, in the language of baby fashion lore, this looplike stitch is particularly the mode this season.

Proof against wind and weather are the cunning knitted suits which shield little five-year-olds, perhaps older, perhaps younger, from head to foot, just as this picture sets forth. The lovable little "Snow Sprite" of our illustration is clad in a particularly handsome white wool knitted infant's set.

The leginettes have a slip-cord at the waist, with tassels. The sweater coat boasts belt and collar and, pride of prides, two patch pockets. There are plenteous pearl buttons, two of them finding their way to the cap, posed one on each side flap.

One may take choice of double-breasted and single-breasted coats in these sets, some with turn-down collars, others with storm collar which can be worn down or up. Both ribbed and brushed effects continue in favor, while plain coats with brushed trimmings are greatly featured.

Combining utility with good looks, the new styles in school hats have made their appearance and it should be a simple matter, considering their variety, to choose a smart and becoming model for every little miss who must return to the classroom with the beginning of September. School hats, of course, should be severely plain and the hats shown in this group demonstrate that they may be designed with this idea in mind and still have a jaunty charm that is all their own.

For the high school girl the hat shown at the top is made of braided ribbon with a ribbon trimming in the form of rosette and cascade at the right side. Below at the left is shown a little model of picot-edged ribbon sewed row on row and trimmed with a flat rosette of the same ribbon in a lighter tone.

The two hats shown at the right and below reflect the popularity of knitted goods in junior outfits. These are of knitted brushed wool in contrasting colors and provide the ideal headwear for use with the sweater and skirt combinations that are at present so popular, or they may be had in hat and scarf sets to be worn with school frocks or suits. The hat shown below combines the knitted crown with a brim of angora.

Practical School Hats.

Materials used in making hats for very little girls include camels hair fabric, beauvette, broadcloth and fine chinchilla. It is quite the last word to have the hat match the coat in material, color and trimming.

BACK BROKEN TWICE, BOY CHEERS WEEPING MOTHER

Double Fracture of Spine, Caused by Diving in Shallow Water, Dooms Youth.

New York.—Benjamin Zarecki, fifteen, who for nine days, in spite of a double fracture of the spine, has been in St. Vincent's hospital, West New Brighton, S. I., wonders why the doctors don't fix him up so he can make his mother stop weeping.

Boys with fractured spines can't live, the doctors say. But Benjamin doesn't know that. He only knows that if he dies it will kill his mother. He is now an only child. Another boy was killed several years ago in an automobile accident. Benjamin broke his back July 2 in a dive into four feet of water at South Beach.

"He doesn't think he die," moaned his mother. She is Polish and speaks in broken English: "He my only boy and so good. Always, everywhere he go, he think of me and bring me presents. He know if he die he kill me. Monday he say, 'Mamma, I'm here nine days, but don't worry. I get well.' But after, he told a friend, 'Don't tell my mamma, but I think maybe I die.' He's so strong, such a good boy. My only boy."

"They always have died," said Dr. Daniel F. MacGuire. "Persons should be warned against diving in shallow water. I can remember sixty cases of the same kind, all preventable, and all in poor families. They all died."

Affection for Rubber Tree Lands Him Ten Days

New York.—It required the sinewy determination of two robust policemen in Brooklyn to tear a rubber plant from the affectionate embrace of George Martin. Having formed a more or less unconventional love for the little tree, Martin shed hot tears when his adored plant and himself came to the parting of the ways.

A narrow-minded world could not understand such emotions. Martin cried himself into court, where Magistrate Short, in Bridge Plaza's Hall of Justice, fined him $10 and sentenced him to ten days in jail. The rubber plant was returned to its rightful owner, Mrs. Emma McSaveny, of Brooklyn.

Mrs. McSaveny, possibly touched by the taking of the plant from her home, refused to prosecute Martin for petit larceny. Whether touched by the spectacle of love or not, certainly she was touched for the plant. The judge, hearing Martin's endearing phrases of "Nice lil (hic) rubber tree! I love lil (hic) rubber trees," said Martin was intoxicated.

Martin admitted he was intoxicated with love. He also didn't mean by enunciating haltingly the formerly well-known word "hic" that in any sense his rubber tree was a hick rubber tree.

He also denied that his penchant for rubber trees was stimulated by his being a participant in playing rubbers of bridge or that he might have been a rubber in a Turkish bath.

His love for rubber trees is strong. Time will prove his affections are possible for rubber, because his heart is so elastic. He is twenty-nine and resides in Brooklyn. It is said he will not be home for ten days.

Couple in Automobile Miss Death Four Times

New York.—Death-defying escapes are not always in the movies. Mr. and Mrs. Allen Wallace found when they drove their coupe along a Grand concourse bridge in the Bronx.

A motorbus struck them from the rear. The car hurtled through an iron fence to a 25-foot drop. Plunging downward, it became entangled in live electric trolley wires, amid bursts of flame and showers of crackling sparks that threatened death for the occupants.

Turning sommersault, it landed with all four wheels on the ground—but square on the tracks of a rapidly approaching trolley car. The motorman jammed on brakes as Mr. and Mrs. Wallace stepped uninjured from their machine, having escaped death four times in a few seconds.

Terrorizes Neighborhood Then Leaps to His Death

Cincinnati.—After terrorizing the neighborhood in Fairview Heights, a dog, supposed to have had rabies, ended his life by jumping into an open catch basin. He drowned in six feet of water. Police reported his death as the first suicide of a dog to go down on their books.

According to neighbors, pedestrians and children narrowly escaped being bitten by the animal. Lieutenant Ringer sought to kill the dog, and, when he arrived on the scene, he was told the dog had leaped into the catch basin.

He removed the lid and peered down. All he could see was a few air bubbles coming to the top.

Killed on Errand of Mercy.

Mobile, Ala.—En route to the railroad station to get ice for his dying wife, Wilkes D. DeShaza, a farmer living near here, was run down and killed by a passenger train.

Dog's Chase After Cat Cost $60,000.

Glasgow, Scotland.—It cost $60,000 for a dog to chase a cat in a garage. The dog upset a lamp and started a fire which destroyed 12 motor cars and most of the garage.

SEEKING KIND HUSBANDS

Young Women of Holland Understand That Americans Treat Their Wives Well.

Thirty-five young women from Holland stepped foot on American shores the other day admitting they are seeking "kind husbands because they heard that American men are good to their wives." Some American wives may be inclined to enjoy a silent laugh over this innocence displayed by the Hollanders, but after the first humorous aspect of the situation has passed, most of those who have enjoyed the comedy will be einclined to believe after all that there is much merit in what these foreign women say about the husbands of America, observes the Bangor Commercial.

When one sits down and considers the lot of women in many countries of Europe, and reflects upon the limited opportunities which they possess for enjoying life, it ought to be a source of mutual satisfaction both to husbands and wives in America that they are living in a country where a higher standard of marital relationship obtains than in many foreign nations.

Family Skeletons Costly.

A profiteer who had done the usual thing—bought a country estate and a town house—felt that there was still somthing needed to complete his money's worth. Other people had ancestry; he must get some.

On the advice of a friend he engaged a man to undertake the necessary research.

In due time the investigator came to report and laid a sealed package on the table. Without opening the package the profiteer ask him how much his fee was.

"I want $1,000," the man replied, "to say nothing."

Of course he got it.—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

Copied Monarch in Wearing Wigs.

It was in the Seventeenth century that the wig found its maximum development in the peruke. The Abbe La Riviere, it appears, started it all by attending the court of Louis XIII in a wig. The king, who was prematurely bald, thought it an excellent idea, and, in adopting it for himself, made it obligatory among discreet courtiers.

A SCHOOL GIRL'S SUCCESS

Everything Depends upon her Health

Mrs. George E. Whitacre Tells of her Daughter's Breakdown and How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her a Healthy, Happy, Strong Girl

Every mother possesses information of vital importance to her young daughter, and the responsibility for her future is largely in her hands.

When a school girl's thoughts become sluggish, when she suffers the consequences of wet feet, pain, headaches, fainting spells, loss of sleep and appetite, and is irregular, her mother should have a thought for her physical condition and try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which has proved a reliable aid to nature for just such conditions in so many cases.

This Mother Writes:

Mahoningtown, Pa.—"I would like to say a few words about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. About a year ago I thought it would be necessary for me to take my daughter out of school. She was losing weight, was nervous, and when she would come home from school she would drop into a chair and cry, and say, 'Mamma, I don't believe I can go to school another day!' I gave her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now she is a healthy, happy, hearty, strong girl and weighs 120 pounds. She has no difficulty in doing her 'gym' work, and she works at home every night and morning, too. I am a mother who can certainly praise your medicine, and if it will be of any benefit you may use this letter as a reference."—Mrs. GEORGE E. WHITACRE, 621 W. Madison Avenue, Mahoningtown, Pa.

Every girl ought to be healthy and strong, and every mother wants her daughter to do well in school and to enjoy herself at other times.

NAMING OUR COUNTIES

Centre County is Called Centre of Keystone State.

What an interesting study is the history of the naming of the 67 counties of this great Keystone state. The names have been popularized by usage but very few persons know just why each county was so named. It is not likely that anyone would care to change one of these names.

Centre County derives its name from the fact that occupies the geographical center of the state.

Blair perpetuates the name of Hon. John Blair, Jr., an early resident who was prominent in the affairs of the state.

Clearfield is by some held to have received its name from a comparatively clear field in which the buffaloes roamed. Others attribute it to the clearing of the field by the Indians.

Clinton derives its name from De Witt Clinton, the builder of the Erie canal and a governor of New York.

Huntingdon is a familiar English name. The county is said to have been christened in honor of the Countess of Huntingdon.

Juniata is an adaption of a work of the Iroquois Indians which means standing stone. The name Juniata, as applied to the river, was made famous about a century ago by the song called "The Blue Juniata."

Mifflin perpetuates the name of a Revolutionary general, Thomas Mifflin, who was of Quaker parentage and was born in Philadelphia. He was long prominent in the political affairs of Pennsylvania and was the first governor under the Constitution of 1790.

Union has reference to our union of states.

To Open Watts Hall.

With the opening of the 1923-24 term on Sept. 12 at the Penna. State College, a new dormitory capable of housing 110 men students will be used for the first time. It has been named "Frederick Watts Hall" as a memorial to the first president of the first board of trustees of the college, Judge Watts, of Carlisle, who was very active in the organization of the institution in 1855. The new dormitory constitutes the last word in residence halls for men. It was erected through state funds appropriated by the 1921 Legislature, and the group of three units will be enlarged eventually through the $2,000,000 emergency building fund drive now nearing completion.

Eels Moving Down Stream.

Recent rains caused a slight rise in the streams and fishermen who are maintaining baskets in Bald Eagle creek and other streams have been out the greater part of each night, as the eels have begun their annual fall "run" down the streams. The run was not heavy, for only a few eels have been secured thus far.

G. A. R. Men of Central Penn'a. Relish Hardtack at Lakemont.

Grand Army men of Central Pennsylvania gathered in Lakemont Park at Altoona on Saturday and had old-time army eats. Quite a number of Centre County veterans attended.

An army reunion without beans and hardtack, reminders of the days when the armies of the north travelled on their nerves and these nourishing foods, would not be a reunion at all. So there was plenty of both. The complete order of the quartermaster's corps included: 800 pounds hardtack, 50 pounds coffee, 9 bushels beans, 5 gallons milk, 175 pounds ham.

The veterans of the World war assisted the G. A. R. men. At 10:30 a re organization meeting was held and officers elected. At 11.30, mess was served and there was a grand rush for the appetizing and bountiful dishes. At 2:30 P. M., a sham battle was staged by veterans of the World war, the G. A. R. enjoying the battle very much and telling how they used to do it in the days of '61—'65.

Sunday School Convention

The annual convention of the Pennsylvania State Sabbath School association will be held at Williamsport, October 10, 11, 12, 1923. I have just received the credential cards for delegates, superintendents, and pastors to attend the convention. Each school should be represented by a delegate beside the superintendent and pastor. The fact of the convention being so near to Centre County this year should help the county to send a large delegation at this time. Please arrange for your delegates early and send the names of each one who expects to go to Williamsport to me and I will mail to them the necessary credentials with the railroad one and one-half fare certificate. Boost for delegates.

Darius Waite, Secretary, Bellefonte.

First Woman Sheriff.

Mrs. Mable Gray, of Williamsport, was appointed last Thursday by Governor Pinchot to succeed her husband, the late Thomas Gray, as sheriff of Lycoming county. Mrs. Gray is the first woman to serve as sheriff in this state. Her father, Warren M. McGinness, managing editor of the Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin for 19 years, died suddenly of heart failure just before the appointment was announced, his death coming just 29 hours after that of her husband.

MORE AUTOS FOR 1924

Manufacturers Will Employ More Men to Increase Production.

There will be more automobiles than ever on the highways next year.

Motor car manufacturers are planning increased production, with employment of more men in factories and associate industries.

Additional plants are being erected by several establishments to care for the 1924 trade and, following the lead of the Ford company, extended advertising campaigns are being started.

Prices remain about the same, with no sensational changes contemplated by any manufacturer.

The "stream line" idea is followed by the new models, with very few exceptions. This plan calls for a straight line from the radiator to the back of the tonneau. To make it possible, radiators are higher, hoods have more conservative lines and bodies are cut down to reduce superfluous material.

As a whole the new automobile sits closer to the ground, with lengthened wheel base bringing the centre of gravity more fully upon the springs. The low-sitting car is harder to turn over, reducing the tendency to skid and allowing easier manipulation on rough roads. Application of the four-wheel brake system to a number of the new models and other transmission and control improvements make them safer and easier to handle in emergencies.

The Ford Motor company starts a new year with a $7,000,000 national advertising campaign, with plans for increased production to fully satisfy the demand for its product.

Application of the "stream line" to the Ford is the outstanding feature of the 1924 model. A higher radiator, an apron joining the front fender and improved body design are the principal changes. The coupe and roadster are lower and especially show the application of the new design.

Practically no changes are made in the Lincoln. Increased production will feature this car's new year.

Two new plants are nearing completion at the Dodge Brothers' factory, to help supply the increased demand. The Dodge advertising campaign, started several years ago, will be continued. The new Dodge plans call for a ten-inch longer wheel base, lower body, weight distribution on improved springs, higher radiator and all steel stream line body, improved instruments arrangement and more leg room for the driver.

Introduction of a new "sport special" is the only thing new at the Maxwell factory. This model is produced in grey-green, with the best points of the various Maxwell models applied.

The Studebaker company is planning an increase in production through development of its "Special Six."

A heavier crankshaft, longer wheel base, higher hood and radiator with stream line body feature the "six" Other models are unchanged.

The 1924 Buick represents probable more sensational changes in construction design than any other car. The body is lengthened, with a higher radiator and cowl. The radiator is completely remodeled. Its hood has the appearance of an inverted brace, similar to that of the Packard.

BEGINS 69TH YEAR

State College Will Start Term With Capacity Enrollment.

The opening of the 69th year at the Penna. State College will take place with the usual general assembly in charge of President John M. Thomas, on Wednesday morning, Sept. 12.

The only innovation at the college this year is the functioning for the first time of the new School of Education which has been formed through the combination of all previously existing educational instruction departments in various other schools of the college. This school will provide for the training of young men and women for the teaching profession.

The usual capacity enrollment of from 3,000 to 3,300 is expected, with a class of 950 freshmen. More than 600 were graduated during the past collegiate year, and those returning with new students admitted with advance standing from other institutions will mean that within a few days after the opening every available room on the campus and in the town will be filled. Students will report for registration on Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 10 and 11.

OVER THE COUNTY

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Shaffer, after an absence of 27 years, are visiting with old friends in Brush valley. They reside on a farm at Dakota, Ill.

How quickly summer has seemed to pass! School days have started again and, in another week, all will be hustle and bustle at the Bellefonte Academy and in our neighbor town, at State College, when the several thousands of students will be getting established for the Fall terms.

Dogs have been working havoc among the sheep on the Bosl farm, tenanted by Frank Harpster, on the Branch. The dogs so far have escaped but will likely return. The first attack resulted in a number of the sheep being mangled. Recently several sheep were killed and 8 others badly bitten.

Did you ever hear some elderly person say, "Wait until you get as old as I am and then you'll know something?" Charles Shaw, 85, a Clinton County tobacco grower, might well give this advice, for he has proved that in the many years of his life which he has devoted to producing better tobacco, he has learned something worthwhile. His crop this year is so good that he has been dubbed the champion tobacco grower of Clinton County.

John Quici, while at work in the quarry of the Chemical Lime Co., had his left foot painfully bruised when a large stone unexpectedly rolled onto it. The stone caught his little toe and the one next to it, lacerating and bruising them so that he is unable to wear a shoe and may be obliged to remain from work for several weeks. During this time he will draw part pay because of the compensation laws.

Mr. and Mrs. N. L. Bartges and little daughter Harriet have moved from Centre Hall to Avis, Mr. Bartges being engaged for this term as principal of the Avis High School.

William Stover, of Freeport, Ill., a successful farmer, has been visiting among friends in Penn's valley after an absence of 18 years. He and Mrs. Stover started east as members of a motoring party. At Brookville, Ind., the party was obliged to stop to make repairs to the automobile. Mr. and Mrs. Stover decided to continue their trip by rail.

A very enjoyable surprise party was sprung on William Aikens, Monday evening of last week, when about 40 of his friends gathered at the Aikens home north of Milesburg in Moose Hollow. Two long tables, filled with the best the farm and market could afford, were filled twice and the guests assuredly enjoyed this feature. Mr. Aikens received a number of pretty and useful gifts.

In honor of the wedding on last Thursday of Charles Naginey, of Milroy, and Miss Winifred Lenard, of Hutchinson, Kans., a very delicious chicken dinner was served in old-fashioned style at the Eutaw House in CentreHall. The dinner was given by 10 of the bridegroom's friends and the occasion proved a most delightful event. Many little tokens of friendship and esteem were presented. Mr. Naginey is a prosperous young farmer and had been making his home with an aunt, Mrs. Robert Thompson, his parents being dead. The happy couple were married in Wichita, Kans., and are on an extended wedding trip. On their return they will reside at Milroy.

FRIENDS QUARTERLY MEETING

Resolution to Support World Peace Adopted.

Friends Quarterly meeting was held in their meeting house, near Stormstown, Sept. 1st to 3rd inclusive.

This meeting consisted of representatives from Centre, Clearfield and Bedford counties. Regular quarterly sessions are held on established dates at Unionville and Stormstown, in Centre County; at Fishertown, in Bedford County and Grampian, in Clearfield County.

In addition to the regular quarterly meeting business routine, there was a community conference called on Sunday afternoon. A union service composed of representatives from above named counties, was attended by about 200 residents of the community.

The subject for consideration was "The Best Method, or Any Method, for Promoting Peace Among Nations." The impractibility as well as the impossibility of the United States or any nation isolating itself in this age of progress and enlightenment, was formally presented by Dr. O. Edward Janney, of Baltimore, and others, resulting in a resolution unanimously adopted by a rising vote, not the usual method of deciding questions in Friends meetings, that the United States should unite with other nations in establishing a "Permanent Court of International Justice." The chairman was directed to report this action in a fraternal letter to President Coolidge and our United States Senators.

Mrs. Henry Shultz Dead.

Mrs. Henry Shultz, one of the most widely known and highly respected residents of Curtin, passed from this life at 4 o'clock on Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Shultz was an active church worker and met with an injury in May, 1917, while at work in preparation for observing Mother's Day in the church of her choice, the Evangelical at Curtin, which finally caused her death. While about to enter the home of a neighbor, she slipped and fell, fracturing her right hip. As such injuries are generally serious for one of advanced aged, she was taken to the hospital and, though her life was saved and she was made as comfortable as possible, she was never able to walk since then. At times she suffered very much pain and this was especially true during the last several weeks, during which time she was very seriously ill from complications. Born in this vicinity on Dec. 26, 1846, she always resided in this section and took an active interest in the affairs of her community. She was a daughter of Barnabas and Eve Shope, both deceased, her maiden name being Henrietta Shope. She and Henry Shultz were united in marriage on Aug. 18. 1872, and observed their Golden Wedding anniversary last year. Mr. Shultz for many years was employed by the Curtins as foreman at their charcoal furnace and his wife frequently boarded folks at their home, near the bridge spanning Bald Eagle creek. One son, LeRoy, died when he was six years old. Surviving are the husband; three brothers: Constance, in the west; T. L., near Curtin, and W. R. Shope, of Bellefonte; two sisters: Mrs. Elizabeth Bubb, in the west, and Mrs. George Reeder, Curtin. Funeral services were held from the home on Tuesday afternoon and burial made in Curtin cemetery.

Mrs. Dorothy Hayse Dead.

Mrs. Dorothy Hayse, beloved wife of Ralph Hayse, of Akron, O., died on Saturday evening at 6 o'clock in an institution at Massilon, O., from a nervous breakdown. The body was brought to the home of a sister, Mrs. Frank Moore, of Bellefonte, and funeral services were held yesterday, with interment in the Zion cemetery. The deceased resided in the vicinity of Zion, where she was reared, and was about 33 years old. She went to Akron about 11 years ago and was married about 10 years ago. She was a daughter of Nelson and Lucy Marshall, both deceased. Surviving are her husband and the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. Harry Miller, Mrs. Earl Smith, Nelson and Mack, of Niagara Falls; Torrence, Unionville; Mrs. Fred Haupt and Mrs. Frank Moore, Bellefonte; William, Linden Hall; and Miss Mildred Marshall, who is making a trip to South America.

Mrs. Lake Sober Dead.

Mrs. Lake Sober died at the home of her parents in Howard last Thursday morning from cancer. The deceased was formerly Miss Mary Weirick and was reared in Howard. She was thirty years old, a graduate of the Lock Haven Hospital Training School for Nurses, and married Mr. Sober three years ago. She was an active member of the Howard Methodist church since her girlhood. Surviving are her husband, her parents, J. T. and Jennie P. Weirick, of Howard; two brothers: J. C., Abington, and Alvin, Altoona, and one sister, Mrs. L. M. Carr, Juniata. Burial was made on Saturday afternoon in Schenck's cemetery.

School News.

The public schools of Bellefonte opened on Tuesday with a full corps of instructors and a record enrollment of pupils. The schools are closed today, so that the families who wished might attend the Grange picnic without interfering with school attendance.

500,000 LOST IN JAPAN

U. S. Ambassador and Mrs. Cyrus Woods Finally Reported Safe.

Earthquakes, tidal waves and fire in Japan in the last few days have caused the death of 500,000 or more persons, destroyed half a million buildings and homes, wiped out whole cities and watering resorts—in a word effecting one of the most stupendous tragedies in the history of the world.

Fears that Ambassador to Japan from the United States, Cyrus E. Woods, and Mrs. Woods, had lost their lives were dispelled on Tuesday with the receipt of a cable from Mr. Woods stating that all of the United States Embassy staff were safe. Mr. Woods is a brother of Dr. George H. Woods, of Pine Grove Mills, and is quite well known in Bellefonte and throughout Centre County. Mrs. Woods has also visited here frequently. The first of the earthquakes occurred last Saturday, and until Tuesday all efforts to secure any word as to the fate of Ambassador and Mrs. Woods had proved futile.

The great cities of Tokio and Yokohama, the pride of all Japan, were the worst to suffer, both being virtually brought to ruins, first by earthquakes and then by fires which swept over the demolished buildings. Scores of smaller cities also were wiped out. Many thousands were crushed to death or consumed by flames in those two centers of population. Numerous islands, which were noted as watering resorts, were completely submerged by tidal waves, snuffing out anditional thousands of lives.

It is estimated that about 67 Pennsylvanians were in the earthquake zone of Japan at the time of the eruptions. For three days all cable communication to the outside world was suspended.

Such messages as have come through indicate frightful loss of life from hunger and thirst. Water plants of numerous cities were completely destroyed. Countless cities are without food. Special steamers have been started for the sadly stricken country. The Red Cross in the United States, and in many other lands, has assumed charge of the gigantic task of getting food and supplies to the scene of destruction Public meetings are scheduled in virtually every city in the United States to raise funds for relief work.

Opening Football Game.

The football season of the Bellefonte Academy will be opened on Hughes Field, Saturday afternoon, Sept 29, at 3 o'clock. The opponents of the Academy will be the crack Potts College team, of Williamsport. There will be only three home games and no real fan can afford to miss a single contest. The Academy players have been arriving this week for early practice from New York, New Hampshire, New Jersey, West Virginia, Ohio, Michigan and our own Keystone State. It was reported yesterday that Jimmie Grimm, all-around star athlete of Beaver, Pa., would enter Bellefonte Academy and report with the football squad which starts practice Friday. Grimm is a big boy who is prominent in Western Pennsylvania as a coming baseball pitcher. He also has a splendid reputation as a football player, basket ball man and track man. He weighs 185 pounds and his track records show that he has plenty of speed.

Borrowing

There are few people who do not, at times, have to borrow money. But borrowing money to buy what one can do without is not good business. Better to wait until the cash is in hand.

Borrowing money to invest in an uncertain business venture is hazardous. Often the most promising ventures are unsuccessful. But there is no uncertainty about the debt.

HOW TO FORGET TROUBLES

TROUBLES knock up your system like Jack Dempsey knocks down his opponent.

Troubles deal blows both in the head and stomach—and they hurt the stomach more than they do the head!

Troubles give the stomach indigestion, slow up the liver—and then follow constipation and biliousness.

The way to get rid of troubles is to invigorate digestion, stimulate liver and bowels and tone up the entire system. The best way to do this—has been for the past 80 years—is to take Beecham's Pills.

Then you will feel so good that "troubles" become merely problems, to be solved readily by the clear, keen brain of health.

POLLY OF PAPEETE

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

(©, 1923, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

IF GEORGE MALCOLM and Mary Malcolm could have foreseen the sad culmination of their world tour (their sudden illness with a tropical disease, their deaths in a little one-story hotel in Papeete, Tahiti; the consequent stranding of their eleven-year-old daughter), why, of course, they would have abandoned their journey.

But their vision could not pierce the veil of the future, and events occurred exactly as enumerated above. So suddenly were they smitten that there was no time to make arrangements for little Polly. She simply became a legacy to kind-hearted Mother Kenyon, who ran the Beach Harbor house, along with the few effects left by her parents and what money there was about their persons.

So Polly stayed on, growing into a slim, reserved young person, and a great help to Mother Kenyon, who did well by the girl as far as lay in her power.

When she was sixteen two things occurred. Letters began to arrive regarding one George Malcolm and his wife—cautious, investigating letters apparently written by some one who didn't wish to be let in for any responsibility until he or she were sure of its justification. Of equal importance to Polly with the letters, a new British consul took up his residence on the hill behind the hotel.

His name was Dean Everett. He was very good-looking and thirty-two. He was unmarried and heart free when he came. He met Polly and almost immediately fell head over heels in love.

Months went by while Mother Kenyon received and answered letters without making much of them to Polly, and Dean watched Polly daily growing into that winsome womanhood when he would feel at liberty to ask her to marry him.

Then came the culminating letter. It seemed that the person behind all the inquiries was a distant cousin of George Malcolm, an elderly aunt, evidently a well-to-do woman who had never seen Polly or Polly's mother, but who had heard of their journey and its sad ending months afterward. It seems remittances had piled up at another port of call and authorities there had communicated with the bank on which the checks were drawn.

The bank in turn had sought for relatives or information of the unfortunate couple. A steamer carrying mail which might have straightened out matters had been lost in a Southern Pacific hurricane. The whole affair had been involved and tedious.

But at last to Polly, nearing her eighteenth birthday, came the information that considerable money—or so it seemed to her—was due her, and a summons to come home and live with the aforesaid aunt and receive the care and education which must have been sadly lacking at the ends of the earth.

Polly took the letter to Dean in troubled bewilderment. What should she do? Mother Kenyon thought she should go. What did he think?

"You must go, dear, by all means," he advised in what he conceived to be an elder brotherly fashion.

And so it was arranged. Polly was to go back on the very steamer which had brought the letter.

An hour before the boat was due to go Polly slipped away for a few minutes by herself down on the silver beach, where a radiant moon rode the heavens and the deep boom of the surf smote on one's ears from beyond the reef. Would her new home be as wonderful as the one she was leaving?

She sat for some moments drinking in the beauty of the scene. Then as she turned to go she saw a lonely figure pacing the shore, head bent, some distance down the beach. She recognized Dean immediately, started toward him, then thought better of it and ran back toward the hotel.

The Maronia's whistles blew shrilly as Everett waited on the dock. Either Polly had not come or else she had gone aboard and forgotten him. Yet there stood Mother Kenyon, the nucleus of a little group. True, every one came down to see the boat leave, but she would hardly stand there so complacently had not Polly been duly put aboard.

Now they were pulling in the gangplank. Now there was a steady widening gap between the boat and the dock. Good-by, little Polly. Good-by!

But what was this sudden whirlwind at his side, which thrust a warm hand confidently into his? He turned and looked into Polly's shining eyes.

"Dean, you old silly! Why didn't you tell me you—you cared. Instead of that it had to be Mother Kenyon. I asked her if she thought you did, and she said 'Yes,' and then—why, of course, I couldn't go!"

"And you'll stay at the end of the earth with me, dear?" asked Dean, not yet sure of his wonderful fortune.

"End of the earth, Dean?" cried Polly. "Why, it's home!"

Poor Pup!

"Miss," said the policeman, "is that your dachshund peeping around the corner of Sixteenth street?"

"Yes, it is," she replied. "I have called him, but he won't come on."

"He can't," said the copper. "His tail's caught in a doorway on Fifteenth street!"

Big Risk Taken By Engine Crews

Men Who Pilot Trains Through Tunnels Literally Take Lives in Their Hands.

Washington.—The engine crews who drive the modern monster types of locomotives through the longer tunnels of American railways are frequently exposed to the presence of deadly carbon monoxide gas and to withering temperatures ranging up to 136 degrees Fahrenheit, states the Department of the Interior, as the result of an investigation conducted by the bureau of mines in Utah and Wyoming. Hot exhaust gases are the source of danger from exposure to tunnel atmospheres. Many serious accidents have occurred in these tunnels due to asphyxiation or exhaustion of the locomotive crews, caused by exposure to atmospheres containing carbon monoxide, or to atmospheres of a high temperature and saturated with moisture. These hazards are accentuated by a group of less importance consisting of sulphur dioxide, hydrogen sulphide, soot and steam, accompanied by the decreased oxygen content of the air.

Suggested Remedy.

The Interior department recommends the use of smoke deflectors on locomotives operating in tunnel districts as a means of reducing the hazard due to high temperatures, and the use of the train air-brake line as a source of air for breathing purposes for members of engine crews.

The object of the Interior department's investigation, conducted by the bureau of mines in co-operation with the Union Pacific railroad, was to determine the cause of gassing accidents by examining into composition of the air in locomotive cabs while passing through railroad tunnels; to learn the effect of these conditions on the engine crews, and to provide a means of protection for the men so exposed.

Gas samples and temperature readings taken in the cabs of locomotives were used in studying the atmospheric conditions to which the locomotive crews were exposed. The symptoms and the physiological effects produced in men exposed to the atmospheres encountered were studied. The pulse rates and body temperatures were taken and determinations of the carbon monoxide content of the blood were made. Various methods for the prevention of gassing and for the protection of men therefrom were considered and tested, among which were the use of mechanical devices for deflecting the smoke away from the engine cab and the use of various types of gas masks and breathing apparatus.

Of forty trips conducted in cabs of locomotives while the trains were passing through tunnels, carbon monoxide was found to be present on thirty-four trips.

Extreme Temperature.

The operation of 24 trains of approximately 2,000 tons each, in a normal running time of six minutes through the Aspen tunnel in Wyoming showed cab temperatures of 114 degrees Fahrenheit (dry bulb), 111 degrees (wet bulb) and a relative humidity of 90 per cent. The maximum dry-bulb temperature recorded on any of the forty tests conducted was 136 degrees, while the maximum wet-bulb temperature was 124 degrees. The time consumed in the passage of the trains varied from 4½ minutes to 25 minutes.

Results of physiological tests over periods of ten minutes showed that the conditions in the cabs might be severe enough to cause asphyxiation or exhaustion in periods of 20 minutes, especially in cases where the engine is stalled.

Pocket respirator and other types of gas masks, packed with soda-lime charcoal mixtures, afforded protection against smoke and sulphurous gases. Carbon monoxide masks afforded protection against all of the gases encountered. Some discomfort was experienced in wearing gas masks in atmospheres of high temperature and humidity, however.

Mechanical methods for deflecting the smoke, by using the force of the exhaust in conjunction with a hood or elbow attached to the top of the locomotive stack, for throwing the smoke back over the top of the cab were found very effective in reducing the temperature and improving the atmospheric conditions in the cab.

Pink Slip Shows Who Will Be the Boss

A youth and a maiden were in the marriage license bureau, at San Francisco, Cal. When they left, with a marriage license in the youth's pocket, clerks found a small pink paper on which was written the following:

"Henry, get haircut and manicure; get full-dress suit; wash head; don't put water on head; get a pair of garters; perfume nicely; don't eat onions; get full-dress collar and necktie; get shoes; get bags; get a new tooth brush; get the license; get flowers; be on time for wedding; don't forget the ring. Mary."

Romance in an Old Gray House in New York City

New York.—Up on Central Park, West, in the middle 80s, there is a boarding house that is unique—absolutely different from every other boarding house in the manner in which it is run and the sort of people who live there. It is an old-fashioned gray brick house with a corner tower and it was "founded" (for it is an institution) by three southern sisters.

During the twenty-odd years they have been taking "paying guests" they have introduced a modicum of sympathy and understanding and friendliness into their home far above most boarding houses.

Two of the sisters have gone to their reward, but the third sister remains at the helm.

The house has a reputation in the South, from Washington, D. C., to Key West; from White Sulphur to Galveston. And many a southern father who would not otherwise let his daughter come along to wicked New York, feels that she is perfectly safe at the old gray house in Central Park, West.

HAS NIMBLE FINGERS

Miss Birdie Reeves of St. Louis, Mo., sixteen years old, is one of the fastest of typists and knows 64,000 words, and she writes them all with only two fingers of each hand, using a system invented by her father.

As young men boarders are not lacking, it is the boast of the place that romances which have led to about 57 marriages have begun or culminated within its walls.

The food, served with a southern reckless profusion, is really southern cooking.

Pair Die at Same Time While Seeking Health

Scranton, Pa.—Mr. and Mrs. John Perry, parents of nine children, died at exactly the same hour on a little farm at Forest Lake, where they had moved in an effort to regain their lost health. Perry was fifty-one years old and his wife was forty-five. The woman died of a complication of diseases. The husband succumbed to miners' asthma. The couple lived at Scranton until two years ago, when Perry decided to move to the farm near Montrose, Pa., in an effort to fight off the ravages of his ailment.

Hen Has Record for Big Eggs.

Ashland, Ore.—Mrs. J. E. Ramsay of Ashland lays claim to having a world's champion hen when it comes to laying large eggs. All eggs laid by this hen are unusually large, but one egg which measured 8½ by 7½ inches, is believed to be one of the largest ever laid in Oregon. The hen is a Barred Rock, from the famous Oregon Agricultural college strain, and is three years old.

Jungle Hides Ancient City

Place in Ceylon Was Founded 437 B. C., and Covered Area of Sixteen Square Miles.

Boston.—Of the buried cities of Ceylon, the most fully excavated to date is Anuradhapura. Not that excavation can be said to be at all complete, but at the present stage startling facts are revealed.

Here, says a writer in the Christian Science Monitor, was an ancient city, a contemporary of Rome, which for extent quite dwarfs it. "Road-centering Rome" was builded on seven small hills—Anuradhapura's splendid structures cover an area at least sixteen miles square. At least—for neither the out city walls nor its exact boundaries have as yet been determined. Decipherable "Asoka" characters place its founding as a royal city at 437 B. C.; its desertion as such did not take place until late in the Ninth century.

Twelve hundred years of puissance, of luxury, of splendid architecture—and yet the western world knows of it nothing. Attacked by the jungle the moment the nightfires of civilization flickered out, like the vast ruins of Aztec culture in Yucatan, its part is as legendary, its wonders as mythical as Ilium, Troy, or pent-up Utica.

Today one walks through the valley of Anuradhapura as though through a fine old English wood. Pastured cattle keep a lawnlike floor beneath stalwart live oaks, banyans, teak, and ficus trees. Monkeys, parrots and endless sorts of smaller feathered jewels pass forever above you. Clinging rattan, air-ferns, orchids, draping mosses far aloft yield only a dusky half-light along the pathways.

Throughout the 256 square miles of this park-like domain, now interspersed with marble bathing pools, now overtowered by soaring dagobas, stand—and also lie—unnumbered thousands of square stone columns, unique to that far-off period of Ceylon. These monoliths of every girth and height are everywhere here. Springing from wide marble platforms, or embedded in the soil, once supporting canopies or upper floors, they present a feature the most casual visitor cannot fail to find impressive. And remember, they are hand-hewn, manhandled monoliths; though much smaller than those used by the Egyptians. The "Brazen Palace" (erected about 160 B. C.) had 1,600 pillars supporting the second story.

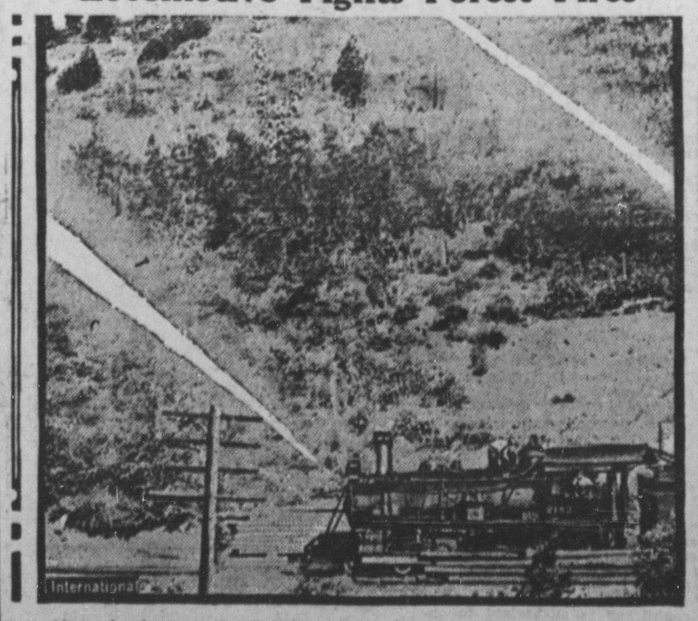
The structures so made appear to have been mainly for two uses—as monasteries and their adjuncts, and as precincts of royalty. Indeed, it seems as if the wide range of Anuradhapura had been given over to the highly active, recently introduced Buddhism as a sort of spiritual exposition ground, a national Acropolis and Chautauqua together, in the glory and learning of which royalty, semi-deified, had a natural place.

Huge Dagobas.

The royal establishment had many elaborate bathing "tanks" (a Sanscrit word) round-about, and there were many others of a ritual nature scattered throughout the city. These uncanopied, al fresco, some of them yet holding water, have been excavated by scores, their ancient splendor easily discernible. Another of the particular features of this vanished civilization, of this buried metropolis, is a half dozen sky-scraping dagobas. Four are of tremendous size, the Abhayagiriya having a height of probably 280 feet and a base diameter of 252 feet. A dagoba is a memorial structure (solid usually, occasionally also a reliquary) inspired somehow by Buddhism; is generally conical, and is found of a characteristic type in each country—becoming the well-known pagoda in China and Japan.

The Abhayagiriya dagoba, around which spreads a pavement eight acres in area, has been calculated by an authority as requiring bricks sufficient "to have built a wall ten feet high from London to Edinburgh."

Locomotive Fights Forest Fires



Above is shown a fire-fighting locomotive, one of several on the Southern Pacific lines. These engines are equipped completely with forest fire fighting apparatus, shooting powerful streams of water as shown in the photograph.

Judgment of a Modern Solomon That Proved of Some Benefit to the Red Cross.

The Milwaukee chapter gained $5, due to the fact that Nichetas Beltosos is a diplomat as well as a peacemaker and philanthropist.

One day two women entered his store and as they were leaving the shop "Nic" noticed a $5 bill on the floor," says the Red Cross Courier.

"Did either of the ladies lose it?" he asked. "They did," the ladies agreed.

They were uncertain at first, but as their certainty increased Nic's perplexity did likewise.

"There are three ways to settle this," he said. "We can tear the bill in two and give each of you half, which would be foolish. I could keep it myself, which would be wrong. Since you can't have it, and I can't have it, let's give it to the Red Cross."

Entire Town of Elcho Lives in This Hotel

Elcho, Wis., boasts of the largest hotel and community center in the world in proportion to its population. Last February the town was wiped off the map by fire, not a single house escaping. Charles W. Fish, president of a lumber company, decided to build a hotel and community center, and within 90 days had erected a building occupying one block and containing a movie theater, bank, drug store, barber shop, general store and a hotel consisting of 60 rooms and equipped with every modern convenience. The entire population lives at this hotel, and the only other building in the city is the community center, which everyone is welcome to join.

ACADEMY FOOT BALL

Coach Snavely Has Promising Material For Team.

Three more members of the Bellefonte Academy team of last year have picked the colleges they will attend and have sent for their credits. Jennewine will enter West Virginia University, Coleman will enter Colgate and McCabe will try his fortune with Lafayette. This makes a total of fourteen of last year's Bellefonte team who this year will be found in the camps of six of the strongest colleges in America, including Pitt, Colgate, Cornell, Lafayette, West Virginia and Michigan.

The men whom Coach Snavely will have to take the places of these dependable stars this year is proof of the fact that the fame of a winner travels far, and that the splendid record of the Bellefonte teams and of the Bellefonte men is an attraction to young athletes in all parts of the country. Boys from nine states will be present on the Bellefonte squad when it goes into action on Thursday. The encouraging fact is that these boys are considered to be among the best in their respective states which makes Bellefonte's chances look good in spite of the unusually large number of splendid men she is losing.

Walsh, of New Jersey, was a star last year at Mercersburg; Welch and Gwinn are two of the choice products of West Virginia; Blackburn, Frawley, Empie and Vogel are prominent in New York state; Hill and Wittman are generally considered the class of Ohio youngsters; Davidson comes from Mass., and he is a giant youth of 6 foot 5; Manchester calls from Michigan, and the balance of the squad will represent eastern and western Pennsylvania.

ÆTNA
A Welcome Pay Envelope

HONEST, old man, I don't know what we would have done without that ÆTNA ACCUMULATIVE ACCIDENT POLICY.

When a fellow lives on the "no-work-no-pay basis" and has nothing to fall back on, a cracked head and a broken arm don't get him anything. All he can do is sit around and wonder how the wife can scrape together enough to keep the family going. He just naturally worries himself twice as sick.

But this Ætna Accident Policy takes the place of the pay envelope. Gives you $50 a week as long as you're totally disabled by your injuries and $25 a week even though you are only partially disabled by them. Pays the bill for a surgical operation, too.

All you do is sit back and tell your broken head and arm: "All right, boys, take your time about healing. I'm provided for until you're fit again."

ÆTNA-IZE

Safeguard YOUR income against accident. Protect YOUR home from want. Let us explain how easy it is—how cheap. Write or telephone.

How to Get the Right Style For Fall

The other way is to go to a store that knows style; a store that specializes in clothes that offer the best style ideas.

This store is such a store; Hart Schaffner & Marx are the clothes.

See the new easy English type of suits for young men; the new trim waisted models.
